DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Darrieus (2,659,243). Darrieus discloses a device for absorbing resonant vibration of a rotating component of a turbomachine comprising a cavity 15 with walls and having a spherical trough of a predetermined radius; a ball 22 having a predetermined radius and placed within the cavity so that it rests in the spherical trough at a predetermined location such that when inside the cavity of the component tacks a preselected speed line of the turbomachine; and a predetermined gap within the cavity in which the ball rolls is selectable such that the ball impacts the cavity walls during resonant vibration of the component.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over wherein the device comprises a cavity with wall, a ball with a predetermine radius and placed with the cavity, and a predetermined gap within the cavity in which the ball rolls such that the ball impacts the cavity walls during resonant vibration of the rotating component. Figure 2A does not disclose the cavity having a spherical trough.

Darrieus teaches a damping mechanism for a rotating component wherein the component has a cavity having a spherical trough. Since both Darrieus and the admitted prior art are directed toward damping vibration in a rotating component, it would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to modify the component of the prior art, with the teachings of Darrieus, by having a spherical trough instead of a flat surface for the purpose of properly aligning the ball.
